20. Conteúdo da unidade curricular/Syllabus (máx. 200 palavras):

Decision making is an essential part of our private and professional life. Decisions often concern morally sensitive matters. In such cases, we tend to turn to relatives, friends and colleagues and look for their help and advice. We thus make moral decisions based on our moral intuitions. But how can we be sure that what our moral intuitions tell us to do is the right thing to do? How do moral intuitions arise? Are my moral intuitions reliable? The aim of this course is to provide an answer to these fundamental questions. To this end, the course will be divided in two parts.

1)The first part of the course will be dedicated to introduce the students to the three main moral theories in normative ethics: virtue ethics, deontology, and consequentialism. Students will be asked to read and comment on selected passages from Aristotle's Nicomachean Ethics, Kant's Groundwork of the Metaphysics of Morals, and Mill's Utilitarianism. Particular attention will be also devoted to moral relativism and moral nihilism. These main theories will be explained with the help of selected passages from several films.

2)In the second part of the course students will be asked to apply the knowledge that they have acquired in the first part of the course to the analysis of moral dilemmas as they are presented in films. After a brief introduction to the main questions concerning the relation between ethics and aesthetics, the attention will be devoted to fundamental topics such as moral freedom (free will vs determinism), moral autonomy (in connection to issues in bioethics), and moral responsibility (in connection to social issues), among others. These topics will be discussed with the help of selected passages from several films.
